

AMELINEAU, ABBE' EMILE

exoterically the first Egyptologist to discover, translate and promulgate the name of the aboriginal African tribal nations of Ancient Egypt/Kemit as the ANU PEOPLES; based upon his finding actual Egyptian hieroglyphics from Pre-Dynastic artifacts and monuments; the discoverer of the archaeological burial site of Pre-Dynastic Kings and Dynastic Pharaohs at Abydos, Egypt; the only significant Egyptologist in nearly 50 years since the untimely death of JEAN CHAMPOLLION to continue to document and promulgate the existence of the aboriginal black African ANU PEOPLES and their cultural contribution to the ancient Pre-Dynastic and Dynastic Egyptian civilization; whose 2 classic books in French the 1899 Les Nouvelles Fouvelles d Abydos and the 1916 Prolegomenes' a l'etude de la religion egyptienne had English translated excerpts included in CHEKH ANKA DIOP'S African Origin of Civilization; and esoterically Amelineau was influenced by the "Aboriginal Anu People Theory" of the first Egyptologist JEAN CHAMPOLLION, and thus he extended Champollion's theory nearly 50 years after it had been stalled by the latter's untimely death; was blocked from further research at the Abydos Predynastic burial site that he had first discovered, being replaced by British Egyptologist Flinders Petrie; his "Anu People as founders of ancient Egypt's civilization theories" were discredited by fellow French Egyptologist Gaston Maspero and ignored by the conventional Egyptologists to this day.
