(from M. Bierbier, The Tomb Builders and the Pharaohs, fig. 85)

EXHIBIT NOTES:

- “Figure 85 is the sarcophagus lid of Egyptian Queen Ankhnesneferibre. She was the daughter of Pharaoh Psamtik II and wife of Pharaoh Ahmes II. She became High Priestess of Amun at Thebes in 584 B.C. in succession to her great-aunt, who had adopted her in 595 B.C. The last historical record of her is in 525 B.C., the year of the Persian conquest of Egypt whereupon Pharaoh Ahmes II was killed. It is not known if she was ever laid to rest in her splendid sarcophagus.”
(from M. Bierbier, The Tomb Builders and the Pharaohs, fig. 85)
- Esoterically, the last High Priestess-Queen before the Persian Conquest is a product of the much weakened but still operational Ancient Egyptian Mystery School of On \(Annu\) wearing a Winged Aten Head Dress. She is also shown wearing the headdress crown associated with the Fourth Spiritual Plane Sun-Goddess Tefnut implying she had reached that spiritual plane and thus a Sphinx/HU. Her adherence to the "Aten Path" is further gleaned from the hieroglyphics on her Sarcophagus translated in Exhibit III J-2.
- Consistent with her Aten Path High Priestess status as graduate of the Ancient Egyptian Mystery School of On (Annu) she is Amenses wearing no underwear being free of menstruation and leucorrhoea and would be nutritionally a vegan/vegetarian.

FOOTNOTES:

a. Literally “Heru Neter” the generic term for Sun-God.

b. Citation to this reference to the “Aten 7Atannu’ was found in E. Wallis Budge’s Hieroglyphic Dictionary, Vol. I, p. 98 column b as follows:

“Aten 7 - the seven disks of the Sun-God, British Museum No. 32, 1. 253.”

“B.M. No. 32, 1. 253” was not deciphered in the dictionary as to the source hieroglyph location. But after extensive research the “Sarcophagus of Queen Ankhnesberferabra” was found to be British Museum Item #32, published text of the hieroglyphs in a book by Budge cited above denoting “line 253” therein containing the Aten 7~Atannu term.

Esoterically the Aten 7Atannu is the “Path and Orbit of the 7 Atens, the 7 internal sun disks of the 7 Sun-Gods.” One Sun-God and his Aten inner sun manifestation exists on each of the 7 spiritual planes between the physical plane and the 8 th plane of the GODHEAD ANNU. On the 4 lowest planes, 4 SunGoddesses Ast (first spiritual plane), Maat-Neb-Het (second spiritual plane), Het-Heru (third spiritual plane) and Tef-Nut (fourth spiritual plane); and personify the Annu-Khet or inner lighted sound stream of the creative word. See Appendix I-B for detail on cosmography. See Exhibit II B-1 and Exhibit II B-2 for depictions of the 4 Sun-Goddesses.

c. Heru Neb literally.
